BLOW-UP GROWS UP 50 years on...

Friday March 3rd at Ludlow Assembly Rooms
4:30 pm.

As part of the 2017 Borderlines Film Festival, author Peter Burden will present Antonioni's Blow-Up, the Italian film-maker's seminal 1960s movie

On March 16th 1967, Michelangelo Antonioni's newest film, Blow Up received its world premiere in London and, just two months later, went on to win the Palme d'Or at Cannes. One of its fringe-effects was to launch a promising, intelligent young actor, David Hemmings, as a shooting star. Peter Burden worked closely with Hemmings on his autobiography.

Peter Burden will introduce the film and hold a Q&A session afterwards.

Copies of David Hemmings' own account of his hectic life – Blow Up & Other Exaggerations; Part One: From Childhood to Charge – will be on sale before and after the screening. It is published in a new, 50th anniversary paperback edition by Wigmore Books on March 1st 2017.
